Equity in Workplace Language

Language and its imagery shape our reality, our values, and our perceptions of ourselves and others. The purpose of language is clear communication and self-expression. Inclusive language is a style of communication which values all people. It does not perpetuate cultural biases and prejudices based on gender, ability, or ethnic, racial, and socio-economic backgrounds. Stereotypical attitudes are expressed in many ways, but perhaps the most pervasive expression is through the use of everyday language and imagery which excludes groups or individuals, undervalues their participation in society, or demeans them. Be aware of this when communicating with clients, either in writing, or on the phone or in person. Words are very powerful and subject to misinterpretation, if not used properly.

NOTE: It is understood that tone of voice, body language and the advantages of immediate interchange of information do not exist when using email. This leaves considerable room for misinterpretation, while also creating a permanent record of the message. This should be kept in mind when communicating in this form, in light of a possible interpretation of harassment, embarrassment or discomfort by the receiver.

Alcohol, Drugs, and Weapons

You are responsible to report for work free from the influence of all drugs (including prescription medication, illegal drugs, and legal marijuana) or alcohol.

If you report to work under the influence of alcohol or drugs, or you use alcohol, marijuana or illegal drugs during working hours, you will be subject to disciplinary action up to and including termination.

Medical Considerations

- The Company will take appropriate steps to accommodate employees with substance abuse problems. If you require accommodation and assistance from the Company, you are responsible to communicate this need in sufficient detail and to co-operate with the Company to facilitate an appropriate course of action.
- If you are taking prescription or over-the-counter medication, including medical marijuana, that could impair your job performance, you must report this treatment to your supervisor. The proper use of such medication may necessitate modified duties or reassignment during the course of treatment. See the "Accommodation and Known Health Issue Policy" for further detail regarding medical accommodation.

Social Functions

Company sponsored events where alcohol or marijuana may be consumed must be authorized by your supervisor.

If you consume alcohol or marijuana during a social event, you are responsible to ensure that your use is reasonable. You are also expected to observe all laws regarding the consumption of alcohol and marijuana. In particular, do not drive under the influence.

Consequences of Policy Infraction

The use, sale, or possession of alcohol, drugs or illegal drugs while on the job or on the Company's property is cause for disciplinary action up to and including termination. Any illegal substance will be turned over to the appropriate law enforcement agency.

Weapons

Any employee having a firearm or other lethal weapon on company property shall be subject to disciplinary action up to and including termination.

Smoking Policy

Smoking tobacco is permitted in open areas in accordance with the General Contractor's rules and regulations. Smoking on site must accord with the legislation of the area in which the work is being done. In the event of designated smoking areas on site you may only smoke while on your break.

Requesting Accommodation & Communicating Known Health Issues

It is the employee's responsibility to make the Company aware of any known health issues that require accommodation and to make a formal request of accommodation.

In circumstances where the employee has a known medical issue but does not require an immediate accommodation, the employee is responsible for informing the Company of any important information regarding the employee's condition (i.e. special requirements in case of medical emergency, information regarding allergies, etc.)

Accommodation requests should, whenever possible, be made in writing. The accommodation request should indicate:

- The employee's full name
- The reason accommodation is required, including documentation to confirm the existence of a need for accommodation
- The specific accommodation being requested

All accommodation requests will be taken seriously. No person will be penalized for making an accommodation request.

The aim of accommodation is to remove barriers and ensure equality. Accommodations will be developed on an individualized basis. Appropriate accommodations may include:

- Work station adjustments
- Job redesign
- Technical aids
- Providing materials in alternative formats
- Counselling and referral services
- Temporary or permanent alternative work
- Changes to performance standards
- Changes to scheduling or hours of work
- Changes to work uniforms

Accommodation will be provided to the point of undue hardship.

A decision on undue hardship will be based on an assessment of costs, outside sources of funding, and health and safety. It will be based on objective evidence.

Where an accommodation is assessed to create undue hardship, the person requesting accommodation will be given written notice, including the reasons for the decision and the objective evidence relied upon.

Computer Usage

The computer is for business use. Personal emails are the equivalent to phone calls and must be kept to a minimum. Employees are not permitted to:

- Download any information from the internet,
- Load any software programs
- Delete any programs from the computer
- Alter any setting of any software programs
- Visit non-work related web sites

NOTE: For further information review the Computer Applications Policy.

Computer Applications

As part of the normal conduct of business, companies use computer applications both internal and external. These applications include various office automation tools, databases, electronic mail and the World-Wide Web. Company employees need to be aware that these powerful services, by their very nature, pose risks. Employees should observe the following guidelines when utilizing Company computer services.

1. BUSINESS USE: Company computer services are to be used only in the normal conduct of company business. Company computer services may not be used for personal use or the conduct of personal business.
2. CONSENT TO MONITORING – by using Company data network, employees' consent to monitoring and recording of all communications and information transmitted to or stored on the network or computer system.
3. ASSET PROTECTION – employees should use the same care with on-line communication as with written communication. All information transmitted on-line should be accurate, concise and factual. Transmit information only if it is necessary to do so. Do not let the ease of on-line communication cause you to send unnecessary communications. Confidential or proprietary information of the Company and other companies must be protected. Information belonging to another person or company must not be duplicated or distributed without the express written consent of an authorized representative of that person or company.
4. ELECTRONIC MAIL – electronic mail, whether within or outside the Company, is not private. All messages are company records and may be monitored and managed by the Company authorized personnel. The Company reserves the right to access and disclose all messages sent over its electronic mail system for any purpose. The contents of email are a reflection of the Company and, therefore, an employee should not write anything in an email message that would not be put in a written letter or memorandum. Assume that any electronic mail sent may be viewed by parties other than the intended recipient. Even when an email message is erased, it is still possible to recreate the message. Employees should also be aware that electronic mail messages sent outside the network may be also accessible by non-Company employees other than the addressee.
5. RECORD RETENTION – electronic mail shall be treated in the same manner as paper documents for company record retention purposes. Retention of emails should be evaluated on a case by case basis, and are usually user and client specific.
6. OFFENSIVE EMAIL – electronic mail may contain content that may be reasonably considered offensive or disruptive to any employee. Offensive content would include, but would not be limited to, sexual comments or images, racial slurs, gender-specific comments, or any comments that would offend someone on the basis of his or her age, sexual orientation, religious or political beliefs, national origin or disability.

7. DOWNLOADING – employees are cautioned that downloading material from an outside source might be considered copyright infringement.
8. PASSWORDS – every individual requires a password on their PC. All passwords are CMB Erectors property and must be protected as such. Passwords are confidential to the user and are not to be given out for any reason to unauthorized individuals. Passwords should be a minimum of five characters in length. It is suggested that they be changed at least every 90 days. If an employee feels his or her password has been compromised, the password must be changed immediately.
9. COMPUTER / NETWORK SECURITY – attempting to subvert computer / network security, to impair functionality of the network/computer, or to bypass restrictions set by the administrator is prohibited. Assisting others in violating these rules by sharing information or passwords is also considered unacceptable behaviour. Employees are required to log off when not using the computer system.
10. LAWFUL USE – employees must comply with all applicable laws (federal, provincial and local) when using Company PC / network systems.
11. INCIDENT REPORTING – employees are expected to report any suspected on-line security violations or incidents to the IT Monitor.
12. VIOLATIONS – persons who violate this policy will be subject to serious discipline and or dismissal.
13. EMAIL ETIQUETTE – keep in mind the following:
 - Ask yourself – do I need to send a particular message by email?
 - Would I want a jury or a newspaper reporter to read this email?
 - Be polite – make sure short messages do not come across as rude or abrupt.
 - Do not send jokes, offensive or otherwise or frivolous messages.
 - Do not write anything you would not want repeated. Email can be forwarded to hundreds of people in and out of the Company.
 - Work out problems face-to-face, not on email. It is tempting to say rash things via email that you will later regret.
 - Protect your password and always log off when not using the system

NOTE: Email does not replace the use of a business letter. If an email is more than two (2) paragraphs it is corporate policy that you complete the document as a business letter attachment. Be sure that you use proper grammar and sentence structure i.e. no texting or acronyms.

Social Media

The following principles apply to professional use of social media on behalf of the Company as well as personal use of social media when referencing the Company.

- Employees should be aware that the Company may observe content and information made available by employees through social media. Employees should use their best judgment in posting material that is neither inappropriate nor harmful to the Company, its employees, or customers.
- Although not an exclusive list, some specific examples of prohibited social media conduct include: posting commentary, content, or images that are defamatory, pornographic, proprietary, harassing, libelous, or that can create a hostile work environment.
- Employees are not to publish, post, or release any company information without direct consent from their supervisor for each post. This includes photo, video, or any other information that would identify the project, company, or related parties (i.e. vendors, suppliers, employees, etc.). If there are questions about what is considered confidential, employees should check with their supervisor.
- Social media networks, blogs and other types of online content sometimes generate press and media attention or legal questions. Employees should refer these inquiries their supervisors.
- If employees encounter a situation while using social media that may become antagonistic, employees should disengage from the dialogue in a polite manner and seek the advice of a supervisor.
- Social media use shouldn't interfere with employee's responsibilities.

The Company provides an environment that supports employees in developing and maintaining good health habits and a positive well-being. The Flu Pandemic Awareness Policy is a component that promotes a healthy environment for all employees, associates and clients.

Employees and associates in office locations where a health concern is identified are encouraged to use common sense and be aware of flu pandemic signs to ensure everyone's health. If you are contagious you are required to stay away from work for one (1) week.

In order to provide a healthy environment for all staff, please read the following information.

What is an influenza pandemic?

An influenza pandemic is a flu outbreak distinguished from seasonal influenza by its scope and seriousness. It becomes a worldwide epidemic, or pandemic, when a disease spreads easily and rapidly through many countries and regions of the world and affects a large percentage of the population where it spreads.

How does an influenza pandemic start?

The viruses that cause ordinary/seasonal influenza – or “flu” – are constantly changing. An influenza pandemic starts when a new strain of flu virus emerges, and is different from common strains. Because people have no immunity to the new virus, it can spread quickly and infect hundreds of thousands of people. Influenza pandemic strains can develop when an animal or bird virus mixes with a human virus to form a new virus.

What is the contagious period?

Influenza can be contagious for one or even up to two days before any symptoms arise and for five days after the onset of symptoms. This means you could spread the virus without knowing you are infected. In addition the contagious period may be longer in the very young and those with weakened immune system.

What is the difference between the ordinary/seasonal influenza – or “flu” – and an influenza pandemic?

An influenza pandemic can appear very similar to the ordinary/seasonal flu. Because people will have little or no immunity to an influenza pandemic virus, the spread of the disease can occur more quickly than with the seasonal flu.

The symptoms are the same: fever, headache, aches and pains, tiredness, stuffy nose, sneezing, sore throat and cough. However, they can be much more severe with a pandemic influenza and affect people who do not normally suffer as much from the seasonal flu – such as younger, healthy adults. For example, in the 1918 and 1919 pandemic, the death rate was highest among healthy adults. It is important to note that the young and old may not have all the usual flu symptoms.

Both ordinary/seasonal flu and an influenza pandemic are spread in the same way. The flu virus is spread when someone infected with the virus coughs or sneezes, and droplets containing the virus come in contact with another person's nose, mouth or eyes. It can also be spread when people with the virus cough or sneeze into their hands and contaminate things they touch, such as a door handle. Other people can become infected if they touch the same object and then touch their face. Here is what you should know about an influenza pandemic:

Ordinary Flu	Influenza Pandemic
Seasonal flu happens every year.	An influenza pandemic happens only two or three times a century.
Seasonal flu is usually around from November to April – and then stops.	An influenza pandemic usually comes in two or even three waves several months apart. Each wave lasts about two months.
About 10% of Canadians get ordinary seasonal flu each year.	About 35% of Canadians may get the influenza over the course of the full outbreak.
Most people who get seasonal flu will get sick, but they usually recover within a couple of weeks.	About half of the people who get influenza during a pandemic will become ill. Most will recover, but it may take a long time. And some people will die.
Seasonal flu is hardest on people who don't have a strong immune system : the very young, the very old, and people with certain chronic illnesses.	People of any age may become seriously ill with influenza during a pandemic. This depends on the virus.
In a normal flu season, a relatively small number of Canadians die of complications from the flu, such as pneumonia.	During an influenza pandemic, Canada would see many more people infected and possibly many more deaths.
There are annual flu shots that will protect people from seasonal flu.	There is no existing vaccine for an influenza pandemic. It will take four to six months after the pandemic starts to develop a vaccine.
There are drugs that people can take to treat seasonal flu.	These same drugs may also help people but we will not know their full effectiveness until the virus is identified.

How can I protect myself and my family from an influenza pandemic?

If an influenza pandemic spreads to Canada, you can reduce your risk by doing the same things you do to protect yourself and your family from ordinary/seasonal influenza and other infections:

- Get your seasonal influenza shot every year – the “flu” shot will not protect you from an influenza pandemic virus, but it will protect you from getting ordinary/seasonal flu, which could weaken your immune system or resistance.
- Wash your hands with soap thoroughly and often – good hand hygiene is the best way to prevent the spread of all viruses.
- Keep an alcohol-based sanitizer (gel or wipes) handy at work, home and in the car (hand sanitizers should contain 60-90% alcohol).
- Cover your mouth and nose with a tissue when you cough or sneeze, dispose of the tissue after use and always wash your hands as a last step.
- If a tissue is not available, cough or sneeze into your sleeve
- Stay home when you are sick
- Avoid large crowds of people where viruses can spread easily when there is an outbreak in your community
- Avoid large crowds of people and close contact with others (while traveling for example)

LOSS PREVENTION

Employee Theft

Employee dishonesty can be a very difficult subject to discuss. When employees steal from the company, everyone feels the effects and we all lose.

What is theft?

- Everyone commits theft who fraudulently and without right converts to his / her use, or the use of another person, anything which is the property of the Company.
- Everyone commits theft when, with intent to steal, he / she removes property or causes it to be removed.
- Everyone commits theft when, with intent, he / she gives away or deliberately undercharges a customer / employee for Company merchandise.
- Everyone commits theft when they intentionally damage Company property.
- Everyone commits theft when they take cash from the Company.
- In order to deter attempts, employees apprehended for theft will be subject to severe disciplinary action up to and including termination. Since the Company may prosecute all such cases, not only do the employees lose their job, they often end up with a criminal record. It is also not a good situation for co-workers who are left to suffer through the tension and negative atmosphere associated with such cases.

As part of everyone's responsibilities, loss control is an important aspect of our jobs. In administering this area, everyone is expected to ensure that all the Companies Policies and Procedures, i.e. cash handling, receiving, employee purchases etc. are strictly adhered to.

If you see an employee stealing, you should:

- Inform an owner or your supervisor of the situation witnessed

For further details see Workplace Health & Safety for further details.

In any case where a period of twelve (12) calendar months has elapsed since an employee's last received a written warning or a suspension, all previous written warnings shall be removed from the employee's Personnel File.

WORKPLACE HARASSMENT

What is Harassment?

By way of definition, harassment means verbal or physical conduct, bodily contact, comment or gestures of a person and / or sexual nature which:

- Is threatening, offensive, humiliating, or intimidating to an employee, or,
- May, on reasonable grounds, be perceived by that employee as placing a condition of a sexual nature on employment or any opportunity for training or promotion.

Responsibilities and Penalties

Harassment of any form is a serious offence subject to a wide range of disciplinary sanctions up to and including discharge. Some situations may be serious enough to constitute a criminal offence. All employees are responsible for ensuring that the workplace is free from harassment. Upon becoming aware that some form of harassment is occurring, individuals are responsible for taking corrective action by notifying the Business Manager. This responsibility exists even if no formal complaint is made.

What should you do if you feel you are being harassed?

Step one: Ask the harasser to stop.

Inform the alleged harasser that his or her behavior is unwelcome. An individual (although he or she should know better) may not realize that he or she is being offensive. A simple chat may resolve the problem. If the person refuses to cooperate, remind him or her that such behavior is unwelcome and is against company standard and the Human Rights Code.

If the action persists, it would be advisable to keep a written record of dates, times, specific behavior, what was done or said, whether there were any witnesses, etc. failure to keep a diary of the events will not invalidate your complaint. A record will reinforce it and more easily enable June Ammerman to act on your complaint.

If the behavior continues, or if an employee is not comfortable with confronting the alleged harasser directly, proceed directly to Step Two.

Step Two: Lodge a complaint:

Informal complaint:

Speak to your immediate supervisor in confidence. This is an opportunity to discuss options for dealing with the matter and to obtain advice. There is generally no investigation performed in response to an informal complaint, although the alleged harasser may be spoken to in a general manner to ensure that he or she understands the workplace harassment standard.

Formal Complaint:

Alleged harassment may be reported as a formal complaint. The Company owners will conduct an investigation into the allegation. The findings of this investigation will be discussed with the complainant, the alleged harasser, and the legal counsel (if necessary). Identities will not be otherwise revealed unless disclosure is necessary to conduct a complete and thorough investigation.

If the complaint is substantiated, the range of possible disciplinary measures varies from providing a formal apology to dismissal. If the harasser is formally disciplined, documentation will be placed in their personnel file.

These actions do not supersede complaint procedures established by legislation.

Step Three: Alternative Complaint Resolution Option

If you feel your complaint is not, or cannot be satisfactorily resolved through steps one and two, the Company encourages you to bring your complaint to the attention of either one of the owners.

Step Four:

If you feel your complaint is not, or cannot be satisfactorily resolved through step three, go to an outside authority only after all internal options have been exhausted.

Workplace Harassment Policy

The Company recognizes the diverse and multicultural composition of its workforce and also appreciates the dignity and worth of each member. Every employee has the right to work in an environment free from harassment on any grounds. We will take whatever steps are reasonable to protect our workers from workplace harassment from all sources, including clients, customers, other workers, supervisors or managers, strangers, intimate partners, or family members of other employees. In keeping with our legal and social responsibilities as an employer, the Company will treat any claim of harassment as a serious matter. No such harassment will be tolerated.

NOTE: Please see Workplace Health & Safety and Workplace Harassment & Violence Prevention in the Employee Policy and Procedure Manual for related information about employee, supervisor and employer responsibilities, as well as other details regarding our workplace harassment and violence program.

What is Harassment?

It is any verbal or physical conduct, bodily contact, comment or gestures of a person and / or sexual nature which:

- Is threatening, offensive, humiliating, or intimidating to an employee;
- May, on reasonable grounds, be perceived by that employee as placing a condition of a sexual nature on employment or any opportunity for training or promotion.

- Inappropriate sexual touching, advances, suggestions or requests.

Harassment also includes a form of discrimination. The Company provides fair and equitable rights and opportunities for all without discrimination. Every employee has the right to work in an environment free from harassment on any grounds.

Responsibilities and Penalties

Harassment of any form is a serious offence subject to a wide range of disciplinary sanctions up to and including discharge. Some situations may be serious enough to constitute a criminal offence. Employees and management are jointly responsible for ensuring that the workplace is free from harassment. Upon becoming aware that some form of harassment is occurring, individuals are responsible for taking corrective action by notifying their immediate supervisor or the owner. This responsibility exists even if no formal complaint is made.

Policy Statement

- The Company is committed to maintaining a safe workplace that is free of harassment;
- Any form of harassment which creates an offensive or intimidating climate of will NOT be tolerated, regardless of origin;

- Managers, supervisors, and workers are expected to uphold this policy, and will be held accountable by the employer;
- This policy shall be posted in a conspicuous location.

NOTE: Please see the Workplace Harassment and Violence Complaint Procedure for the Company's formalized policy for what to do when you experience harassment in the workplace. As well, nothing in this policy prevents or discourages a worker from filing an application with the Human Rights Tribunal on a matter related to the Alberta Human Rights Act within one year of the last alleged incident.

Workplace Sexual Harassment

What is Sexual Harassment?

By way of definition workplace sexual harassment is:

- a) Engaging in a course of vexatious comment or conduct against a worker in a workplace because of sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or sexual expression, where the course of comment or conduct is known or ought to reasonable be known to be unwelcome, or
- b) Making a sexual solicitation or advance where the person making the solicitation or advance is in a position to confer, grant or deny a benefit or advancement to the worker and the person knows or ought reasonable to know that the solicitation or advance is unwelcome.

However workplace sexual harassment is not reasonable action taken by an employer or supervisor relating to the management or direction of the workers or employees.

Re: Personal Tool Requirement Policy

The company is no longer able to supply employees with basic hand tools which are essential to the Building Erector trades person.

Employees are now required to purchase and maintain their own supply of hand tools according the Personal Tool Requirement Policy. Purchases can be staggered to better budget for the cost of these tools; however, the company expects all current employees to have the “1st Level at Hire” list items purchase within 30 days.

The “2nd Level” list of items must be purchased and on the job site within 120 days.

Finally, the following “3rd Level” list of items should be purchased and in use by the end of 1 year

A Tool reimbursement policy has been implemented to help off set the cost to trades staff who are required by the Company to supply and maintain their own tools of trade.

Used tools in good condition are acceptable but will not be eligible for the reimbursement. Only new tools purchases accompanied by an itemized receipt will qualify for the maximum reimbursement allowed.

The company or supervisor will conduct random audits of employees to ensure compliance with this policy.

Re: Company Policy Regarding All Leave and Employee's Responsibilities

The following is to clarify CMB Erector's policy on all leave including Sick, Personal and Emergency Leave following recent changes enacted Jan. 1, 2019 with the passing of Bill 47 in Ontario. Company policy follows the ESA of Ontario.

Effective immediately, there will be no paid days. You can take 3 days for personal illness (sick days), 3 for family responsibilities and 2 for bereavement leave.

Family medical leave is unpaid, job-protected leave of up to 8 weeks each calendar year to provide care or support to certain family members whom a qualified health practitioner has issued a certificate indicating that he or she has a serious medical condition.

When possible, employees should inform his/her supervisor in advance that a leave will be taken. When a leave is unexpected, such as a sudden illness, the employee must report his/her absence as soon as reasonably possible prior to the commencement of the scheduled shift.

When an employee fails to inform his/her supervisor of an absence then that employee will be subject to disciplinary actions that progresses from warnings up to and including dismissal.

For further clarification and to read the policies in their entirety, please see the CMB Erector's Employee Policy and Procedure Manual for Ontario.
